

A mountain goat with thick white fur and curved horns is shown in profile, facing right. It is standing in a snowy, mountainous environment with evergreen trees. The background is a soft-focus landscape of snow and trees.

@goatalliance

DID YOU KNOW?

Alpine meadows are crucial foraging locations for mountain goats. Climate change is expected to cause an upward shift of ecozones, shrinking the alpine areas of mountains. This will increase shrub and tree growth, and limit the size of these important foraging meadows.